BACKGROUND

Pregnancy is counted as a blessing yet somehow pregnancy can cause many problems to the mothers, especially the unplanned one. The problems that mothers will face are not only during pregnancy but also after they give birth. And the problems are not always about physically but also psychologically. The most common psychology problem that the mothers should face is postpartum depression that occurs after they give birth.

CONCLUSION

Having knowledge about postpartum depre ssion is really important especially for those who want to be parents. It is important to learn about postpartum depression as it is very useful for the fathers to be. They will be more aware, ready, and know what they should do if their wives face the postpartum depression.
